

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 3 A.M.

STATE DEFENSE.—General Burbridge made a speech in Lexington last week, at a serenade given to Montgomery Blair, who recently sent his farewell-order of resignation of the Postmaster-generalship. With most commendable frankness, he said he did not make any reference to politics, but he did not say so either. Intelligent that he intended to pursue a more vigorous policy against secession, and adopt such measures as would extirpate them. We can assure General Burbridge that it is the popular opinion something should be done, and speedily, for the condition of our State is lamentable. It has paled to understand the reason for procrastinating the movements which we are now promised will be commenced. We cannot charge the War Department at Washington with the delay, for it seems to have fully authorized the terms of service tendered. The First Kentucky Regiment, which reported to Gen. Johnson in Virginia, and serving one year, was disbanded, when Captain DeShaw returned to Kentucky, raised another company, and remained there. The passing through all the campaigns in this department, the men were wounded in the battles of Perryville, Chickamauga, and Dalton. Many and terrible were the sufferings of the eye should avail themselves of the opportunity of consulting him.
